

What are the most common reasons for the loss of teeth?

Aside from tooth decay, the next most common cause of tooth loss is periodontal disease which will affect the gums and the bone structure that holds the teeth in place and properly supports them. Among children, tooth decay is the most common cause of tooth loss while the most significant cause of tooth loss in adults is periodontal disease.