

Is there any special oral health requirements for women who are pregnancy?

Pregnant women have special oral health needs so it is important to take special care during pregnancy. Pregnancy gingivitis is a term used to describe swollen and bleeding comes that develop in some women while they are pregnant. These women may also experience changes in taste.

There are also some precautions to take. For example, your dentist might not take routine x-rays while your are pregnant. Also, the best time for treatment may be between the 14th and 20th weeks as it may become uncomfortable for the patient to sit in a dental chair during the last few months.
